

Your WhatsApp, answered.

It replies day and night, it sounds like the business, it books the appointment, and it knows when to fetch a real person.

— ONE MONTH, ONE BUSINESS

What it did while nobody was watching.

Answered by itself

Went to a person

Real numbers from the demo you can log into. Nothing here is an estimate.

— WHAT HAPPENS IN THOSE SEVEN SECONDS

Message in, one answer out.

It arrives

On the business's own
WhatsApp number.

It waits

Four seconds, so three quick messages are one question.

It reads the business

Services, prices, hours,
the way they speak.

It checks itself

Anything it should not answer stops here.

One reply

Never two, and never a holding message.

Desk. Every chat, as it happens.

— SCREEN ONE, UP CLOSE

It stopped itself, twice, in one day.

Waiting on you

Distress

A child. Somebody upset. It said nothing more to either of them and put both in front of the owner.

— SCREEN ONE, THE CONTROL

The owner is always in charge.

The assistant is answering

Pause it when you would rather reply yourself. It stops for the whole business, and everything that arrives waits on this desk until you send it.

Pause the assistant

Pause it

For one customer, or for the whole business.

Everything waits

Nothing goes out until the owner replies.

Take the list

Names and numbers, as a spreadsheet.

— SCREEN ONE, INSIDE A CONVERSATION

Chat. Start to finish, unedited.

— SCREEN ONE, THE MENU

Four things the owner can do to any chat.

-  Take it over
The assistant stops mid-conversation.
-  Hand it back
It picks up where the owner left off.
-  Export everything held
Readable first, then handed to the customer.
-  Erase permanently
Gone from the system, not hidden in it.

Booked by the assistant

On a day anyone at the desk can read.

Block, move, tick off

The front desk still runs the day.

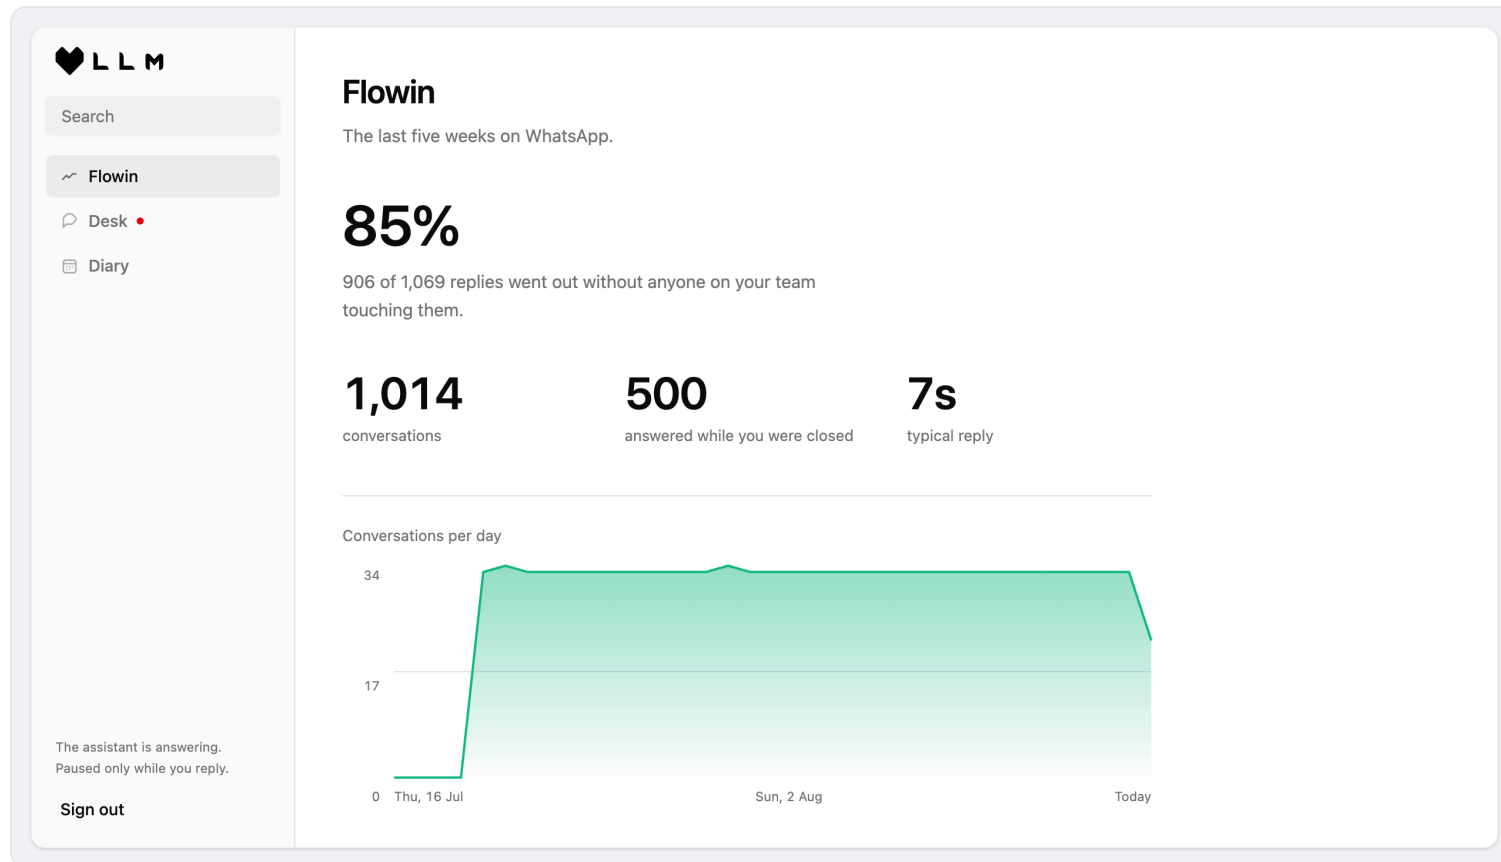

A no-show comes back

As a job to chase, not as a gap.

— SCREEN THREE

Flowin. Proof it was worth it.

One number and one sentence. The owner reads it whenever they like, without asking anybody for a report.

— NEXT TO EVERYTHING ELSE ON THE MARKET

Four things that make the difference.

It replies on its own.

Everything else is a shared inbox. Somebody still has to sit there and type.

It is WhatsApp's own service.

The real number, verified. Not a handset in a drawer that gets blocked.

It sounds like the business.

Its services, its prices, its way of speaking. A clinic is not a salon.

Nothing about it is bespoke.

New answers, not new software. Live in days, and it does not drift.

— THE PART NOBODY ELSE WILL SHOW YOU

When it should not answer, it does not.

It stops. It does not guess.

Upset, at risk, abusive, or a child: it stops writing and a person is brought in at once. Nobody is ever left sitting in silence.

Built for India's data law.

Sent or wiped on request. Nothing kept past a year. Every business held apart from every other one, and the agreement is written.

— SEEING IT FOR YOURSELF

Send us two things.

What you sell

Services and prices, however you already have them written.

When you are open

That is the whole brief. It answers as your business on a real number, and you can try to catch it out.
