

LOGIC LOVING MIND

Your client's WhatsApp, answered.

It replies day and night, it sounds like the business, it books the appointment, and it knows when to fetch a real person.

— ONE MONTH, ONE BUSINESS

What it did while nobody was watching.

85%

of replies went out without anyone on the team lifting a finger

421

questions answered after the business had closed for the day

8_s

is how long a customer waited for a real answer, not a holding message

Real numbers from the demo you can log into. Nothing here is an estimate.

Distress

One customer turned out to be a child. Another was clearly upset. The assistant said nothing more to either of them and passed both straight to the owner. This is your answer when a client asks what happens if it says the wrong thing.

— SCREEN ONE, THE CONTROL

The owner is always in charge.

The assistant is answering

Pause it when you would rather reply yourself. It stops for the whole business, and everything that arrives waits on this desk until you send it.

Pause the assistant

One tap and the owner takes over. The assistant steps back, either for that one customer or for the whole business, and everything that comes in sits and waits until the owner replies. Names and numbers download as a spreadsheet.

Diary. It books, they turn up.

Appointments the assistant made, on a day view anyone at the front desk can read. Block off time, move a booking, tick who arrived. If somebody does not turn up, it comes back as a job to chase rather than being forgotten.

SCREEN THREE

Flowin. Proof it was worth paying for.

typical reply

This is the screen your client opens when they are deciding whether to keep paying you. It answers that in one number and one sentence. There is no chart to work out.

— NEXT TO WHAT THEY HAVE ALREADY BEEN SOLD

Four things that win the deal.

It replies on its own.

Most WhatsApp tools are just a shared inbox. Somebody still has to sit there and type. That person's salary was always the real cost.

It runs on WhatsApp's own service.

The client's real number, verified and set up the way WhatsApp intends. Not an old handset in a drawer that gets blocked three months in.

It sounds like the business.

Its services, its prices, its way of speaking. A clinic sounds like a clinic, a salon sounds like a salon. Change it by writing a normal sentence and the very next reply follows.

Your twentieth client costs what your second did.

Nothing new to buy or set up at our end when you add one. That is where your profit comes from.

— THE PART NOBODY ELSE WILL SHOW YOU

When it should not answer, it does not.

It stops. It does not guess.

If somebody is upset, talks about hurting themselves, or turns abusive, the assistant stops writing and a person is brought in at once. If the customer seems to be a child, it stops for good. It never leaves anybody sitting in silence.

Built for India's data law.

Any customer's details can be sent to them or wiped on request. Nothing is kept longer than a year. Every business's data is held apart from every other one. The agreement your clients will ask for is written and ready to sign.

— YOUR PRICE, PER CLIENT, IN RUPEES

What you pay us.

Setting a client up, once

₹ 15,000

The number, the paperwork, what it knows, how it talks, going live

You sell at ₹30,000 to 40,000

Platform, support and upkeep

1 to 2 clients ₹36,000

3 to 5 clients ₹30,000

6 or more ₹24,000

Per client, per year. The more you run, the less each one costs.

You sell at ₹6,000 to 8,000 a month

Replies included

10,000

Per client, per year. Buy more in blocks of 5,000.

Enough for a busy clinic, salon or institute

Your price drops as you grow. Sign a sixth client and the first five move to the cheaper rate when they next renew. Nothing to renegotiate.

Paid a year or three months ahead. A year is charged as ten months. Extra blocks of replies are priced when you buy them, and that price holds for the rest of the term.

WhatsApp's own message charges are passed to you at cost, listed separately. WhatsApp begins charging for these chats on 1 October 2026. GST on top.

— HOW THIS WORKS

You own the client. We run everything behind it.

First Step Digital Agency

Finds the client, sets the price, sends the bill, and collects their list of services and opening hours.

Logic Loving Mind

Sets up the number, runs the platform, and keeps it safe, backed up and online. We never contact your clients.

Send us one client's price list. We will have the assistant answering as them, on a real number, in about ten minutes.
